

JOB DESCRIPTION

JOB TITLE Environmental Manager - Permian

REPORTS TO Environmental Project Scientist - Permian

JOB OVERVIEW

The Environmental Project Scientist is responsible for ensuring the success of Wescom's environmental projects in the Permian location. This division includes inspection, cleanup, and reporting related to all environmental remediation work. The Project Scientist is responsible for all associated items including responding to client requests for inspections, spill cleanup projects, proposal requests, report writing, submission of reports to government agencies, and coordinating crews in conjunction with the Environmental and Mechanical Managers to accomplish assigned projects. Through daily contact of with Environmental Field Technicians and Environmental Manager manger via phone, email, and texts, the environmental project manager will ensure client satisfaction is attained at a high level. All employees must act with urgency, accountability, and flexibility to ensure Wescom's core values are always followed.

RESPONSIBILITIES AND DUTIES

- Understand New Mexico and Texas Regulations in reference to Air Quality, Soil Remediation and Reclamation – especially regarding the Oil & Gas Industry.
- Promptly respond to client proposal and assistance requests related to environmental projects including Air Quality inspections, spill response and cleanups, and internal and government reporting.
- Assign crews, assets, and other resources to successfully complete spill clean-up projects.
- Ensure prompt reporting as required by clients for further reporting including photos, reports, and other documents on projects.
- Schedule, track, and report on Air Quality inspections and follow up.
- Develop, initiate, and maintain programs to further environmental department growth.
- Collaborate with Environmental Manager and supervisors to ensure proper equipment training and operation of crews assigned to environmental work.

- Train assigned employees on daily procedures related to environmental tasks.
- Develop and maintain relationships with subcontractors and other vendors ensuring they follow Wescom core values for reporting, sampling, and other required third-party services.
- Communicate to employees, management & clients with cheerfulness and a willingness to help.
- Be an active safety role model and follow all safety requirements.
- Live Wescom core values of Building Customers for Life, Serving with Integrity, Empowering People and Creating Opportunities.
- Knowledge of the New Mexico and Texas laws and regulations associated with the Oil & Gas Industry and Air Quality.
- A Bachelor's degree in Environmental Science, Geology or similar OR,
- 6 years of Environmental Consulting experience specifically related to the Oil & Gas Industry.
- Ability to stay focused and complete tasks in challenging and fast paced environment.
- Lift over 50 lbs.

QUALIFICATIONS

SALARY

$70,000/year + depending on experience / salary position

HOURS

Expect 50 hours a week with a start time of 7:00 AM to 5:00 PM M-F with occasional overtime as needed.

CAREER PATH

The Environmental Project Manager reports to the Environmental Manager. There are several career paths available to the right individual including moving to other leadership roles of safety, finance, and operations. Additionally, the Environmental Project Manager could move into a non-leadership role such as crew supervisor. Wescom believes in people and is always willing to explore opportunities.

